

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for rapidly designing a biosensor which binds a preselected ligand to a layer of peptides. The peptide layer is made of relatively short molecules
5 representative of a binding domain of an Olfactory Receptor Protein. The method uses a series of predictive structure determinations to obtain the sequence of the peptides applied to a transducer surface.